

- Science Majors Wanted -

Students with degrees in the sciences (biology, chemistry, physics, engineering, math, geology...) are needed in the field of library and information science. Complement your science degree with a Master of Library Science (MLS) or a Master of Information Science (MIS). A master's degree from the Indiana University School of Library and Information Science can lead to interesting careers.

CAREERS FOR SCIENCE MAJORS IN LIBRARY AND INFORMATION SCIENCE

- Science Area Subject Specialist at a University Library
- Web Manager at a Pharmaceutical Company
- Health Reference at a Public Library
- Information Specialist, Hospital
- Science Faculty Liaison, Academic Library
- Knowledge Management, Corporate Information Center
- Rare Books Librarian or Archivist for Science Collections
- Database Designer, Medical Systems

SLIS ALUMNI have held positions at:
Dow Chemical, Eli Lilly and Company, National Library of Medicine (with MedLine), Central Washington Hospital, Scripps Research Institute, Chemical Abstracts, Engineering Library at Allied Signal Aerospace, Cambridge Scientific Abstracts, Cleveland Botanical Garden Library, NASA Langley Research Center, several medical libraries, and more...

SCIENCE INFORMATION CONTACTS at Indiana University:

Asking questions about careers can help you make decisions. Three science information professionals here at I.U. have agreed to respond to questions about the field:

- Roger Beckman, Head, I.U. Chemistry Library and Life Sciences Library (beckmanr@indiana.edu)
- Bob Noel, Head, I.U. Swain Hall Library for Physics, Astronomy, Math and Computer Science (rnoel@indiana.edu)

School of Library & Information Science

Indiana University
1320 E. Tenth Street, LI 011
Bloomington, IN 47405-3907

Phone: 812.855.2018
Toll-Free: 888.335.7547
E-mail: slis@indiana.edu

Contact us with Questions.

Invest in your future with an I.U. graduate degree.

Master of Information Science Master of Library Science

www.slis.indiana.edu

Making Information Make a Difference